PROCEDURES

Bagging personal protective clothing for laundry

Recommended practice – Bagging personal protective clothing for laundry (Version 01) has been approved and published on the Uniforms and PPE and Clean firefighter toolkits on the intranet.

This recommended practice applies to all staff.

Key points

Recommended practice – Bagging personal protective clothing for laundry must be used by all staff when sending personal protective clothing for laundering.

All clothing items of personal protective equipment (PPE) must be bagged and tagged before being sent to laundry. Scope includes structural firefighting clothing, multi-purpose jacket, duty wear, gloves and PPE worn by trades and administrative staff. This instruction not only helps manage the risk of contamination to firefighters, but also to transport and laundry contractors. Highlights:

- All contaminated items must be tagged with details of the contaminant using the contaminated gear tag available on ESCAT.
- Items contaminated with smoke should be single bagged and tagged
- Items contaminated with asbestos, silica, chemicals or biologicals must be double bagged.
- Uncontaminated items should be tagged 'Uncontaminated' so that transport couriers and the laundry are aware they do not need to wear PPE to handle the items.

Dress uniform and office wear do not need to be bagged and tagged unless contaminated (eg, a senior officer or operational support staff member attending a motor vehicle accident and providing first aid).
